

REGULATIONS ON REPRESENTATION OF THE STAFF OF THE UNITED NATIONS AT GENEVA*

PREAMBLE

The staff of the units of the United Nations at Geneva,

Referring to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, proclaimed by the General Assembly of the United Nations on 10 December 1948, and in particular to article 20, paragraph 1, and article 23, paragraph 4, concerning freedom of association and the right to form and to join trade unions,

Proceeding on the basis of the international norms adopted in respect of labour law, as established in various instruments of the International Labour Organisation, particularly in ILO Convention (No. 87) concerning Freedom of Association and Protection of the Right to Organise, ILO Convention (No. 51) concerning Protection of the Right to Organise and Procedures for Determining Conditions of Employment in the Public Service, ILO Convention (No. 154) concerning the Promotion of Collective Bargaining and ILO Recommendation (No. 143) concerning Protection and Facilities to be Afforded to Workers' Representatives in the Undertaking,

Bearing in mind the objectives of the Charter of the United Nations and convinced that their attainment requires the genuine participation of the staff and its organizations, the broadest possible promotion of solidarity and the scrupulous observance of the provisions of Article 101, paragraph 3, of the Charter,

Considering that the independence of the Secretariat of the United Nations as a whole is inconceivable without independence for the Secretariat's staff members with regard to their own representation,

Affirms its right to organize freely its representation in keeping with the above-mentioned international norms, for the purposes of all discussions and negotiations with the employers, their representatives or their authorized agents,

Reaffirms that, in keeping with the right of association, staff members of the United Nations at Geneva have the right, without prior authorization, to establish and join associations, trade unions and other groups of their choice,

Further reaffirms that the associations, trade unions and other groups of staff of the United Nations at Geneva have the right to draw up their rules and regulations, elect their representatives, organize their management and activities and formulate their programme of action independently and without any external interference,

Claims the right to negotiate its conditions of employment and to conclude collective agreements, binding on all parties concerned, with its employers, their representatives or their authorized agents, and affirms that the first duty of its representatives is to secure satisfaction of this basic claim,

Decides that, in keeping with the above principles, its representation shall henceforth be organized in accordance with the procedures set out in these Organizational Regulations, which, as of the date of entry into force referred to in Chapter X, shall supersede the Organizational Rules of the Staff Council and the Electoral Regulations of the Staff Council of 24 January 1974.
